Carrie McDonnall, Survivor, terrorist attack

Carrie McDonnall is the author of "Facing Terror," which tells the story of her and her husband's life and ministry together. Carrie served as a missionary to Iraq with her husband, David, aiding the Iraqi people in relief and development work. They desired to bring True Hope to a people who have only known darkness and oppression. On March 15, 2004, she and her husband were attacked by terrorists along with three of their coworkers on the crowded streets of Mosul. Their three co-workers (Larry and Jean Elliot, and Karen Watson) died that day. David survived long enough to see his wife to safety the next day. Carrie is the lone survivor of this horrific attack.

Hear Carrie's testimony on Sunday, May 31 at 10:00 a.m. at North Florida Baptist Church!
